

When we step back from our problems far enough to see them in a much larger context, there is common thread and a common message. That thread is evident in the world around us. People are struggling to survive in a world they no longer comprehend. Every fundamental paradigm of what it means to be human is crumbling. What is gender; what is family; what is race? What does it mean to be an American? Who knows for sure anymore? We only know for sure that the old paradigms of human existence no longer embrace the breadth and depth of the human experience. Big as these questions are, they are psychological ones that we should be asking...and leading on as an association! The message is rethink your paradigms! If APA is to survive into the next century, if it is to have the muscle to better people's lives, it must find a new paradigm. We need to pull out all the stops and rethink psychology itself. What, for instance, does it mean to be a psychologist in the 21st century? What is our collective responsibility—scientists, educators and practitioners alike—to our fellow human beings?

Effective Leadership

- Fellow of 7 Divisions: 12, 17, 29, 31, 42, 44, and 52
- 40+ Years in Independent Practice
- 30+ Years in APA Governance
- 20+ Years in State Governance
- Authored and affected major resolutions and policy development in APA and State Association
- 15 years in graduate and secondary education
- Over 100 media, national and international professional presentations

YOU HAVE HEARD FROM ME. NOW I WANT TO HEAR FROM YOU.

What is the ONE primary concern of you and your constituency?
What is the MOST IMPORTANT thing you expect of APA and your next president?

E-mail: armandcerbone2020@gmail.com